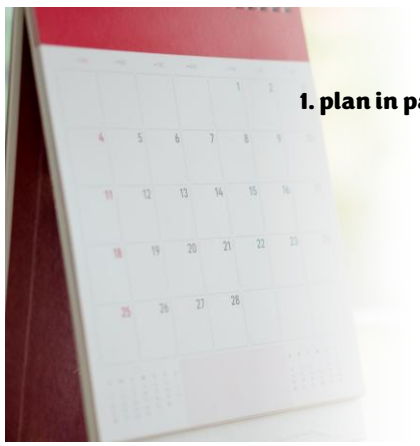
Helpful Hacks for the Co-Taught Classroom

Paula Kluth

Paula Kluth, Ph.D.

- inclusionrules.com
- researcher/ consultant/author
- author of 16 books on inclusive ed. (e.g., UDL, co-teaching, autism)
- former professor of education & K-12 inclusion facilitator



1. plan in patterns

- patterns help all partners---not just co-teachers
- patterns help planning

Are there ways your schedule and plans can become more predictable so that it's easier to coordinate with your partners?

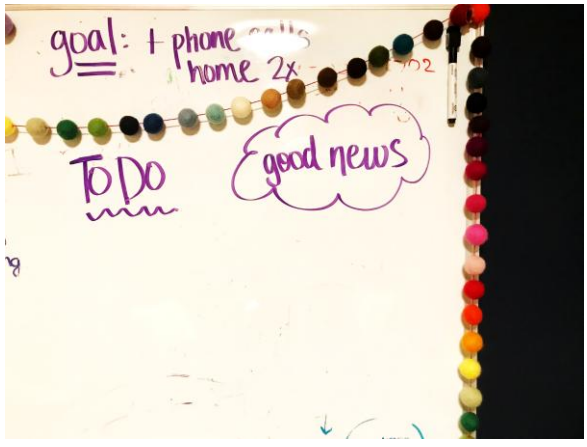
examples

- discussion groups on Wednesdays
- daily movement break or wellness break
- 15-minute review game on Fridays
- Mondays: quick writes at the top of the hour
- choice boards: 2 consecutive days during each unit
- Friday "First Fifteen": content-related kiddie lit
- all units begin with an interactive notebook review

2. batch your lessons

- ❑ Create a schedule (e.g., beginning of each quarter).
- ❑ Keep targets in mind.
- ❑ Remember your patterns or establish new ones.
- ❑ Start with a small batch.
- ❑ Choose an inspiring space or go off campus.
- ❑ Make it an event (e.g., have snacks, invite others).
- ❑ Don't forget your team planning tools!

3. make a display



4. ask the kids

ideas: student support & collaboration

- ❑ feedback and suggestions
- ❑ classroom rituals/jobs
- ❑ filling in at a center/station
- ❑ leading activities
- ❑ planning lessons

5. steal ideas